Contents

Introduction
Lies Sercu and Manuel Jiménez Raya .................................................. 7

Learner autonomy and intercultural competence
Adri Elsen and Oliver St.-John .................................................. 15

Section 1: Teachers’ beliefs: changing teachers’ beliefs is prerequisite to changing teaching practice 39

Teacher beliefs and their impact on teaching practice: a literature review
Lies Sercu and Oliver St. John .................................................. 41

Foreign language teachers and intercultural competence. What keeps teachers from doing what they believe in?
Lies Sercu .................................................. 65

Pedagogy for autonomy, teachers’ attitudes and institutional change: a case study
Antoinette Camilleri-Grima .................................................. 81

Section 2: Action research and teachers’ professionalisation 103

Action Research: Professional development through enquiry
Enrica Flamini and Manuel Jiménez Raya .................................................. 105

Action research as a way to professional development
Ragnar Aagard, Helga Deeg, Enrica Flamini, Kees van Esch .................................................. 125

Reflective teacher development towards pedagogy for autonomy in schools: promoting and understanding change through pedagogical inquiry
Flávia Vieira .................................................. 147

Section 3: E-learning and teachers’ professionalisation 169

The potential of e-learning in the professional development of teachers
Angela McFarlane, Anton Bradburn, Agnes McMahon and Nel Roche .................................................. 171

The development of language teachers’ understandings of intercultural communicative competence: a Bulgarian distance learning case study
Richard Fay and Leah Davcheva .................................................. 191